Electrical Engineering Course Registration Notes:

- As full time students, all Electrical Engineering students must register for 12-14 units each and every quarter. To satisfy this requirement, students can enroll in variable units of individual studies courses, i.e. 500-level courses (more details below).

- First-year students can register for no more than 3 lecture courses each term. However, most advisors recommend no more than 2 lecture courses each term.

- Any student who is attending regular research meetings with a professor should register for 2 units of EE 296. Students should gain permission from advisor/professor before registration. (You can register for these courses in September — they are not available until then.)

- All students are required to take EE 297, Seminar Series, once for M.S. and once for Ph.D.

M.S. Students:

- M.S. students may enroll in EE 597A to obtain credit for their comprehensive examination (project & courses options). Students should enroll in enough units of EE 597A to maintain the 12-14 unit requirement for each term. (You can register for this course in September. It will be listed under the INDIVIDUAL STUDIES COURSES section by advisor.)

- M.S. students can also pursue the Thesis option as long as they identify an advisor who is willing to supervise the Thesis. Please keep in mind that this possibility is not guaranteed as it depends on the research nature and availability of the individual faculty.

Ph.D. Students:

- Entering Ph.D. students can enroll in EE 597B to prepare for the Ph.D. Preliminary Exam. (You can register for this course in September. It will be listed under the INDIVIDUAL STUDIES COURSES section by advisor.)

500-level Courses:

- The purpose of 500-level courses is to give students credit for the work necessary to meet other requirements needed for a degree while being enrolled in at least 12 units each quarter.

- 500-level courses are graded on a Satisfactory/Unsatisfactory (S/U) grading scale.

- 500-level courses will be listed under the INDIVIDUAL STUDIES COURSES section by advisor. They will not be available until September.
